THE STORY OF THE PLAY.

LONG AGO the inhabitants of a small market town went in terror of a strange beast which prowled their streets on moonlight nights. So great was their fear of the creature that their Mayor ordered a curfew when the moon was full, and was the first to disobey his own order through his pretty and frivolous daughters love of dancing: A meeting with the strange visitor has a happy outcome, and the dragon is adopted as the town mascot after telling his story of being under a spell which has transformed him.

In the second act, we find the town Physician, with the aid of the Mayor and Council, trying to exorcize the Dragon. They are convinced that he is of noble birth in his proper state especially the Mayor's daughter, Paula, who thinks that her dream of a noble suitor has at last come true. They succeed in restoring the Dragon to his previous form with an unexpected result. The disappointment at this, and at the loss of their mascot, is lessened by the exciting news of the imminent arrival of some noble visitors and we leave them preparing a great feast of welcome.
